

Why Preserve Wood Windows?

Historic wood windows are considered to be one of the important distinguishing characteristics of historic buildings and the protection of historic wood windows not only preserves an irreplaceable resource but are also cost-effective to the homeowner and are environmentally responsible.

The Historical Commission has gathered considerable information for residents to review when considering whether to restore or replace their home's windows. Please follow this link to obtain information and resources compiled by the Weston Historical Commission that are equally applicable to many of Marion's historic properties:

<https://www.weston.org/574/Why-Preserve-Wood-Windows>